The rioters and hunger strikers, prison officials said, are all prisoners who were transferred from Eastern State Penitentiary here they were ringleaders in the disorders of last September and November.

Thursday. It was at first feared the trouble would spread to other convicts, but a statement on behalf of Warden William B. Mills said the Warden William B. Mills said the ricting and hunger striking had been confined to the former Eastern Penitentiary inmates.

The statement said the trouble is well in hand and no outside help is necessary.

The insurrection broke out af-ter one of the transferred prisoners ter one of the transferred prisoners had been placed in solitary confinement for stealing food. His comrades sent a message through guards to the warden that "we will raise hell" unless the disciplined prisoner were restored to his full privileges. The warden refused to comply and the rioting broke out

Many of the fasting prisoners to-day were reported in weakened con-dition. No attempts were made to dition. No attempts were made to feed them by force, but officials anticipated that many of the strikers will soon capitulate to the pangs of hunger and resume eating.

SURPLUS, OH YEAH?

PREAT BRITAIN has a budget surplus of 31,148,000 pounds which amounts to more than $150,000,000 in our money, she'll always have something to report a surplus to be sneezed at, especially when we remember of your marriage ever fading like that we now have a deficit of something around two billions. that John Bull is to be congratulated. He has acquired the surplus without the benefit of a Brain Trust.

But that isn't quite all of it. Great Britain also acquired are happily married, and I hope that surplus by refusing to pay Uncle Sam installments due on when you are 20 or 25 years older that surplus by refusing to pay Uncle Sam installments due on when you are 20 or 25 years older the debt which she owes Uncle Sam and which she agreed to ... They've come through the years pay. True it is that we got a token payment, which is little more than "chicken feed" compared with the amount due, but this was only to save Great Britain's face and her reputation for always "paying her debts."

They've faced years of pain and suffering and heartbreak and joy and ecstacy and content...

They aren't alike. They are very different from each other, but they have succeeded in adjusting the right.

The other day Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, when he vital differences to each other, with learned of the British budget, advised John Bull to send the money to Uncle Sam on account. But, according to a London are also good friends. They have dispatch to the New York Times, this suggestion of an Ameri- added liking to love and made a rich can senator caused nothing more than mirth in the British capi- marriage of it. lal, where, it is stated, the suggestion was simply laughed at. them.... I wish you as great a victory as they have won! The always interesting Times correspondent tells us that the British newspapers scarcely mentioned the fact that the surplus was made possible by the "token" payments to Uncle Sam, only the conservative Morning Post stating that had the payments been made there would have been a deficit instead of a surplus.

The only criticism of Britannia, openly expressed but political, came from A. V. Alexander, former First Lord of the Admiralty, who is quoted by the New York Times correspondent a. stating, at a labor demonstration in Glasgow:

"The more I examine these figures, the more I am concommitments to the United States in the debt repayment had two years we are in the black." been met there would be no surplus but an actual deficit, allow-before him and it was written enhot have to pay any taxes this year.
before him and it was written enhot have to pay any taxes this year.
before him and remarked to Strange as it may seem lots of peotirely in red ink and remarked to Strange as it may seem lots of peoing for the token payment. If a Socialist government had proposed to default or even to stall payments to our creditors aboard, what an outcry there would have been from the financial pundits and commercial bigwigs! We would have been accused of destroying the nation's credit abroad."

It is coming to be pretty well realized that, so long as we do nothing about it, there will be no more debt payments from Europe. France has repudiated. The "token" payments from Great Britain are merely a makeshift, and nothing more. Britain does not intend to settle up and by token payments merely is seeking to "save her face." The French repudiation at least has the merit of being unhypocritical.

In view of all this, we are wondering just how much dependence we can place in European agreements, if President He seemed so hale and strong and Roosevelt gets his tariff bargaining act through congress and seeks to make trade deals with some of these countries which repudiate their obligations. Will we have just some more scraps of paper?

ANOTHER AMENDMENT

Not content with obtaining adoption of his "lame-duck" amendment to the Constitution, abolishing the short session and changing the dates for presidential inaugurations and the assembling of new congresses. Senator Norris now proposes to change the method of electing

At one time he advocated their election by nation-wide popular vote. His new scheme, embodied in a proposed constitutionalismendment would introduce the proportional system, retaining the machinery of the Electorial College. Under the present plan a presidential candidate who polls a plurality of the votes cast in a state receives all of that state's electoral votes.

Under the Norris plan, which has Mr. Roosevelt's approval, a candidate's electoral vote in each state would be proportionate to his popular vote in the state. In 1928, although Mr. Hoover polled less than 50 per cent of the popular vote in New York he won its entire electoral vote because of his plurality over Mr. Smith. In 1932 Mr. Hoover got fiftynine electoral votes from states in which 2,000,000 ballots were cast for him, while from other states polling a Hoover vote of 13,600,000 he received no electoral votes.

No matter how many presidential candidates were in the field. Mr. Norris would apportion to each electorial votes, or even a fraction of an electoral vote extending into one-hundredths, in accordance with their popular votes. Even with the present number of partles the scheme would lead to endless confusion. But since the tendency would be to increase the number of presidential tickets, there would be confusion worse confounded.

In American history there have been only two presidents who received less than a plurality of the popular vote-Hayes and Harrison. Six others, including Garfield, Cleveland and Wilson, received less than a majority of the popular vote. The theoretical advantages claimed for the Norris proposal are outweighed by the practical disadvantages involved in such a radical change in the electoral system.

They've faced years of more than "chicken feed" compared with the amount due, but and joy and ecstacy and content... this was only to save Great Britain's face and her reputation for .. They aren't alike. They are very always "paying her debts."

The other day Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, when he vital differences to each other, withlearned of the British budget, advised John Bull to send the cent consideration....They were money to Uncle Sam on account. The always interesting Times correspondent tells us that the British newspapers scarcely mentioned the fact that the surplus was made possible by the "token" payments to Uncle Sam, only the conservative Morning Post stating that had the payments been made there would have been a deficit instead of a

The only criticism of Britannia, openly expressed but political, came from A. V. Alexander, former First Lord of the Admiralty, who is quoted by the New York Times correspondent a. stating, at a labor demonstration in Glasgow:

"The more I examine these figures, the more I am convinced of the hypocrisy of the government. We would have been ac- no black ink in the house." cused of destroying the nation's credit abroad."

It is coming to be pretty well realized that, so long as we do nothing about it, there will be no more debt payments from Europe. France has repudiated. The "token" payments from Great Britain are merely a makeshift, and nothing more. Britain does not intend to settle up and by token payments merely is seeking to "save her face." The French repudiation at least has the merit of being unhypocritical.

In view of all this, we are wondering just how much dependence we can place in European agreements, if President He seemed so hale and strong and Roosevelt gets his tariff bargaining act through congress and seeks to make trade deals with some of these countries which repudiate their obligations. Will we have just some more scraps of paper?

ANOTHER AMENDMENT

Not content with obtaining adoption of his "lame-duck" amendment to the Constitution, abolishing the short session and changing the dates for presidential inaugurations and the assembling of new congresses, Senator Norris now proposes to change the method of electing presidents.

At one time he advocated their election by nation-wide popular vote. His new scheme, embodied in a proposed constitutional amendment would introduce the proportional system, retaining the machinery of the Electorial College. Under the present plan a presidential candidate who Learning the meaning of the anpolls a plurality of the votes cast in a state receives all of that state's electoral votes.

Under the Norris plan, which has Mr. Roosevelt's approval, a candidate's electoral vote in each state would be proportionate to his popu- I stopped his doctor in the hall lar vote in the state. In 1928, although Mr. Hoover polled less than 50 per cent of the popular vote in New York he won its entire electoral vote because of his plurality over Mr. Smith. In 1932 Mr. Hoover got fiftynine electoral votes from states in which 2,000,000 ballots were cast for him, while from other states polling a Hoover vote of 13,600,000 he received no electoral votes.

No matter how many presidential candidates were in the field, Mr. Norris would apportion to each electorial votes, or even a fraction of an electoral vote extending into one-hundredths, in accordance with their popular votes. Even with the present number of parties the scheme would lead to endless confusion. But since the tendency would be to increase the number of presidential tickets, there would be confusion worse confounded.

In American history there have been only two presidents who received less than a plurality of the popular vote-Hayes and Harrison. Six others, including Garfield, Cleveland and Wilson, received less than a majority of the popular vote. The theoretical advantages claimed for the Norris proposal are outweighed by the practical disadvantages involved in such a radical change in the electoral system.

SURPLUS, OH YEAH?

TREAT BRITAIN has a budget surplus of 31,148,000 pounds which amounts to more than $150,000,000 in our money. She'll always have something to say. not a surplus to be sneezed at, especially when we remember ply... You shudder at the thought that we now have a deficit of something around two billions, or y that John Bull is to be congratulated. He has acquired the surplus without the benefit of a Brain Trust,

But that isn't quite all of it. Great Britain also acquired that surplus by refusing to pay Uncle Sam installments due on the debt which she owes Uncle Sam and which she agreed to pay. True it is that we got a token payment, which is not more than "chicken feed" compared with the amount due, but this was only to save Great Britain's face and her reputation for always "paying her debts."

They aren't alke. They are very different from each other, but they have succeeded in adjusting their vital differences to each other, with devit impoble surrender but with depay. True it is that we got a token payment, which is little together. They've faced years of more than "chicken feed" compared with the amount due but pain and suffering and heartbreak learned of the British budget, advised John Bull to send the noney to Uncle Sam on account. But, according to a London dispatch to the New York Times, this suggestion of an Ameri- added liking to love and made a rich can senator caused nothing more than mirth in the British capital, where, it is stated, the suggestion was simply laughed at. The always interesting Times correspondent tells us that the British newspapers scarcely mentioned the fact that the surplus was made possible by the "token" payments to Uncle Sam, only the conservative Morning Post stating that had the payments been made there would have been a deficit instead of a

The only criticism of Britannia, openly expressed but political, came from A. V. Alexander, former First Lord of the Admiralty, who is quoted by the New York Times correspondent a. stating, at a labor demonstration in Glasgow:

"The more I examine these figures, the more I am convinced of the hypocrisy of the government. If the country's commitments to the United States in the debt repayment had been met there would be no surplus but an actual deficit, allowing for the token payment. If a Socialist government had proposed to default or even to stall payments to our creditors aboard, what an outcry there would have been from the financial pundits and commercial bigwigs! We would have been accused of destroying the nation's credit abroad."

It is coming to be pretty well realized that, so long as we do nothing about it, there will be no more debt payments from red. Europe. France has repudiated. The "token" payments from Great Britain are merely a makeshift, and nothing more. Britain does not intend to settle up and by token payments merely is seeking to "save her face." The French repudiation at least has the merit of being unhypocritical.

In view of all this, we are wondering just how much dependence we can place in European agreements, if President He seemed so hale and strong and Roosevelt gets his tariff bargaining act through congress and seeks to make trade deals with some of these countries which repudiate their obligations. Will we have just some more scraps of paper?

ANOTHER AMENDMENT

Not content with obtaining adoption of his "lame-duck" amendment to the Constitution, abolishing the short session and changing the dates for presidential inaugurations and the assembling of new congresses, Senator Norris now proposes to change the method of electing presidents.

At one time he advocated their election by nation-wide popular So strong a few days back, and now vote. His new scheme, embodied in a proposed constitutional amendment, would introduce the proportional system, retaining the machinery of the Electorial College. Under the present plan a presidential candidate who Learning the meaning of the anpolls a plurality of the votes cast in a state receives all of that state's electoral votes.

Under the Norris plan, which has Mr. Roosevelt's approval, a candidate's electoral vote in each state would be proportionate to his popular vote in the state. In 1928, although Mr. Hoover polled less than 50 per cent of the popular vote in New York he won its entire electoral vote because of his plurality over Mr. Smith. In 1932 Mr. Hoover got fiftynine electoral votes from states in which 2,000,000 ballots were cast for him, while from other states polling a Hoover vote of 13,600,000 he received no electoral votes.

No matter how many presidential candidates were in the field, Mr. Norris would apportion to each electorial votes, or even a fraction of an electoral vote extending into one-hundredths, in accordance with their popular votes. Even with the present number of parties the scheme would lead to endless confusion. But since the tendency would be to increase the number of presidential tickets, there would be confusion worse confounded. In American history there have been only two presidents who received less than a plurality of the popular vote—Hayes and Harrison. Six others, including Garfield, Cleveland and Wilson, received less than a majority of the popular vote. The theoretical advantages claimed for the Norris proposal are outweighed by the practical disadvantages involved in such a radical change in the electoral system.

THAT'S A MARRIAGE

Young fellow, I see you smiling .I saw you turn and say som: thing to the young thing at your side and I saw both of you turn and look at that middle-aged couple sit-ting over there at their table. I'll try to guess what you said and what you thought ... You saw those two over there, sitting so quietly to-gether, eating their dinner. The women is reading a book. The man is looking through his newspaper. They do not talk much. Hardly at all. Sometimes the man reads something from the paper. His wife listens, replies, returns to her book. They have that married look, you say to your little friend. You think it's a dull look, too...You said something to her about how terrible it must be to be married so long that you become like those two and have nothing to say to each other. To live in so faded, so habitual a fashion that they exist practically in

You and she will never be like those other two. You tell her so. She agrees. You will always find life exciting, every instant of it. You'll your marriage ever fading like

Don't be silly...I know those middle-aged people over there.... That's not a dull marraige. It is an exciting one, really. Those two are happily married, and I hope when you are 20 or 25 years older you two will be as happy as ever...They've come through the years out ignoble surrender but with deconsideration...They lovers, they are lovers still, but they are also good friends. They have marriage of it.

Don't you dare to pity them. Envy them....I wish you as great a vic-tory as they have won!

Girl Is Heroine, Lightning Hits Big Transformer

Young Girl At Clarion Plays Piano And Averts Panic In School Auditorium

(International News Service) CLARION, Pa., Apr. 11—Thirteen-year-old Mary Belle Baker today was hailed as a heroine following her assistance in preventing a pante as lightning struck a transformer adjacent to the local Junior high school last night.

An operetta was being presented at the school when the bolt ripped the pole. Mary Belle, playing a piano overture, continued her solo without ovicinity a note. Her work, school officials said, helped prevent a panic among the 350 spectators at the presentation.

The shock of the balt shattered 15 or 20 windows in the high school. Several members of the cast said they felt slight shocks.

Tyler Damage Case In Hands Of Jury

Curtis Bell Tells Of His Trip To South New Castle On Morning Of Accident

Curtis Bell, who was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in con-nection with the death of Rev. Frank W. Tyler, was the principal witness for the defense today in the case of Mrs. Mae Tyler against J. W. Jenkins for damages. Mrs. Tyler is suing Jenkins on the grounds that Bell was in his employ, and was in the course of his employment when he drove cars which were to be washed at Jenkins' West Side service station.

The defense showed that on the morning of the accident Bell had driven the owner of the car to the that after taking M. R. Hornung to the pottery he had picked up another man and driven down to Mah-oning avenue, where a circus was being held. He had then gone to the home of a friend to get a pair of gum boots.

One of the points which the jury must decide is whether Bell could be considered in the course of his regular employment when he was after the boots. Bell maintained on the witness stand that he did not know he had struck anybody.

Testimony was completed this morning and after arguments by attorneys and a charge by Judge Hil-debrand, the case went to the jury.

Girl Is Heroine, Lightning Hits Big Transformer

Young Girl At Clarion Plays Piano And Averts Panic In School Auditorium

(International News Service) CLARION, Pa., Apr. 11-Thirteenyear-old Mary Belle Baker today was hailed as a heroine following her assistance in preventing a panic as lightning struck a transformer adjacent to the local Junior high school last night.

An operetta was being presented at the school when the bolt ripped the pole. Mary Belle, playing a piane overture, continued her solo without missing a note. Her work, school officials said, helped prevent a panic among the 350 spectators at the presentation.

The shock of the bolt shattered 15 or 20 windows in the high school. Several members of the cast said they felt slight shocks.

Looking west from the new Lines-ville road, the lake is beginning to form, with small ponds visible for several miles. A rise of only a few several miles. A rise of only a few feet will extend the present sheet of water over a great area, perhaps nearly twice its present size, or more than three-fourths of the total area to be inundated.

It is interesting comparison to note that the Pymatuning Lake, now covering 6,500 acres is nearly half the area of Lake Chautauqua, the ires of which is 13,568, and is seven times as large as Conneaut Lake, with an area of 928 acres.

With 10,000 acres yet to be covered with water, and 51 billions of gallons yet to be impounded, there remains only a rise of 13.57 feet in which to accomplish these two extremes. On an even ratio, each additional thousand acres flooded will mean an ad-ditional five billion gallons of water impounded, or with each additional foot of rise, four billion gallons will be impounded.

Smith Candidate For U.S. Congress

Well Known New Castle Man Announces Candidacy For Nomination

C. ED SMITH, JR.

I am taking this means of announcing my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Representative in Congress in the 26th Congressional District.

In becoming a candidate, I am taking into consideration the fact that Lawrence County has not had a representative in Congress since the present district was created.

The Hon. Thos. W. Phillips, Sr., a resident of Lawrence County served two terms in Congress from March 4, 1893 to March 4, 1897.

Since then, the only representa-tive Lawrence County has had was Hon. Charles Matthews, who served term from March 4, 1911 to March 4, 1913. Both Butler and Beaver counties have had representatives in Congress since the present district was ormed, and at the present time the Congressman and State Senator are residents of Beaver County. Many prominent Republicans in Beaver and Butler counties recognize the justice of having the Re-publican candidate from Lawrence County at this time, and are giving me their support.

It is my purpose to conduct an aggressive campaign for the nomination, and I earnestly solicit the sup-port of my fellow Republicans from

Lawrence County.

As the campaign progresses, pect to make known my views on national issues. C. ED SMITH, JR.

Both Butler and Beaver counties have had representatives in Congress since the present district was formed, and at the present time the Congressman and State Senator are residents of Beaver County.

Many prominent Republicans in Beaver and Butler counties recognize the justice of having the Republican candidate from Lawrence County at this time, and are giving me their support.

It is my purpose to conduct an aggressive campaign for the nomination, and I earnestly solicit the support of my fellow Republicans from Lawrence County.

As the campaign progresses, I expect to make known my views on national issues.

Well Known New Castle Man Announces Candidacy For Nomination

C. ED SMITH, JR.

I am taking this means of an-nouncing my candidacy for the Re-publican nomination for Representative in Congress in the 26th Congressional District.

In becoming a candidate, I am taking into consideration the fact that Lawrence County has not had a representative in Congress since the present district was created.

The Hon. Thos. W. Phillips, Sr., a resident of Lawrence County served two terms in Congress from March 4, 1893 to March 4, 1897.

Since then, the only representa-tive Lawrence County has had was Hon. Charles Matthews, who served one term from March 4, 1911 to March 4, 1913.

Both Butler and Beaver counties have had representatives in Congress since the present district was formed, and at the present time the Congressman and State Senator are residents of Beaver County. Many prominent Republicans in Beaver and Butler counties recognize the justice of having the Republican candidate from Lawrence County at this time, and are giving me their support.

It is my purpose to conduct an aggressive campaign for the nomina-tion, and I earnestly solicit the support of my fellow Republicans from County

As the campaign progresses, I expect to make known my views on national issues.

Leaders Welcome To Attend Both Meetings

Mrs. W. H. Hanger, Girl Scout commissioner, today stated that while the roundtable conference on Saturday is of especial interest to the troop leaders and troop committee members, they are welcome also to attend the field institute for council members and community committee members on Friday at the Highland U. P. church.

"Had have or had of" are often incorrectly used for had. Say "If he had tried, he would have succeeded" not "If he had have tried, he would have succeeded".

Five Teams On Titan Athletic Training Field

Puts Gridders Through Stiff Spring Workout

New Castle High School football players some 60 strong held a stiff workout Tuesday afternoon at Taggart Field, Coaches Bridenbaugh Thomas and Klee put the boys through their paces. There are five

A goodly portion of the afternoon was spent by Coaches Bridenbaugh and Thomas in putting the backfield candidates through the rou-tines of cutting, and snake-hipping and expect to have a fine clicking backfield. It just isn't in the books. Need Backfield

A whole new backfield combination must be picked out. Two of the probable starters in the backfield in the spring games will be Walter Raskowski the former all-star guard, who is being made over into a fullback. Then there is the dependable Chuck Fleming who cavorted at end last year and who will more than likely be calling them at the quarterback post this year. Other hopefuls in the backfield department seem to be Tony Perrett, Dallas Mumford, Stanley Kominic, Brownie Ostrosky, Young and De Caprio.

Klee and Harry Crisci took charge of the linemen while the other two men were looking at the backfield. The line is going to be a sweet look-ing one again this year with the Shellogg brothers Alec and Fred, Joe Howley, Palkovitch, Johns, Crisci, Tuscano holdovers from last year back in the fold. # Legalized Bets May Ruin Racing

New York State Expects Many "Set Races" As Result Of Legalizing Bets

By DAVIS J. WALSH International News Service Sports Editor

YORK, April 11.\to The 'mob", the chiselers and the muscie men are all set to move in on the books as soon as open betting at New York race tracks becomes a fact and law. That's one item of confidential information I got today Another is that racing will use the old Percy-Gray system of tickets with each bet, which is splendid but unimportant, And a third, which is neither, is that the "fix" is liable to be on in earnest.

In the first place, it is estimated that any bookmaker operating on the lawn here must start with a stake of at least $15,000. That auto-matically lets the mob in. They're the only people around here with anything except hamburger money barring maybe the bankers and the latter are not running books. Judging by some of the congressional evidence, they's not even running banks but the point is that the rackets now feel they can't miss here. The plan to move in through front-men and then play it two ways. The first is to get to a trainer or jockey to "take a fall out" of the favorite, as the expression goes, and then take all bets on him at all prices. The second is to bet the money back on another horse in the race.

If the worst came to the worst they'd collect on one horse and pay on the other. But who ever heard of a mobsman leaving anything like that to chance? To him, the worse There's nothing preserves one's faith is something that always happens to the other guy.

Trappers have until April 20 to present their pelts before game protectors for certification, stamping and sealing which is necessary be-fore the furs can be sold.

"While it is too early yet to make any definite statement as to the number of beaver taken, I feel very much gratified by the manner in which those interested in taking Mrs. beaver have obeyed the law and acted as true sportsmen," Ernest E. Harwood, executive secretary of the commission, said.

"Although there have been some prosecutions, the number has been surprisingly small compared with the number of trappers who went afield."

Harwood cited favorable weather conditions as one of the many factors pointing to a bountiful catch. It has been estimated that there were about 15,000 beavers in Pennsylvania when the season opened, which number would double in a vear were they continually proyear were they continually protected, according to Harwood.

EXPOSED COAL FIELD REVEALS

Sizes 14 to 42.

(International News Service) HALIFAX, N. S. — One of the most interesting and complete geological pictures on the continent Is to be seen in the joggins coal district of Cumberland County, Neva Scotia This picture is found in the carin the sea cliffs in this district. The formation extends in unbroken order for a distance of about ten miles, and the coal measures are full of interesting markings and structures that show the conditions under which they accumulated. Fossil tree stumps, rooted in place and erect although enveloped in sand and turned to stone, mark the sites of coal forests of early stages of geological history. Skeletons of reptiles in some of the stumps show that primitive lizards found refuge in the hollow trunks, Footmarks on the surface of mud layers, now completely indurated, relegate these creatures to the mud flats of long ago. Raindrop pits tell of passing showers ad cracks bespeak periods of sunshine during the period when the deposits were in the making. Geologists from all over the world have visited these deposits, and fossils from the district are found in nearly all of the larger museums. ENDS SURVEY OF LARGEST PETRIFIED FOREST
